

Joining up your ideas

▷ Use the following words to join up the pairs of short sentences to make longer sentences. (You may need to change or remove one or two words from your new sentences so that they make sense when you have rewritten them.)

which

but because so

and

The Anglo-Saxons came to settle in Britain.

There was good farming land.

They settled on good farming land in river valleys.

They took good lands away from the Britons.

Many people were freemen, such as the churls.

Some farm workers were slaves.

The new farmers cut down trees.

They made themselves strong wooden houses.

Some Britons would not give up their land.

The Anglo-Saxons seized land from the Britons.